FATHERHOOD OF GOD
SUBJECT OF SERMON
BY REV. CUMMINGS

War Will End and Race Hatred Cease When God is Accepted As "Our Father," Says Christian Church Pastor.

When the Fatherhood of God is recognized and accepted by people the world over, there will be no more war, declared the Rev. Clark W. Cummings, in his address Sunday evening at the Christian church. When men and women realize that God is their Father, when they can address Him in common as "Our Father," then they will be brought closer together into that kinship which knows all men as brothers, said the Rev. Cummings. Then there can be no more hatred or race animosity. Yellow men and red men, white men and black men will then be drawn into a common brotherhood. No amount of legislation can prevent wars, but if parents were not so indulgent, if they had a little more real trouble and bumped up against some real adversity. It would teach them the value of perseverance; it would give them a test of strength and character which would make for better men and women; and it might instill in them the truth of the gospel of Christ. If God is our Father, then if we accept God as Father, there can be no such thing as fatalism, class animosities will be entirely swept away, and anarchistic thought cannot be tolerated. For God is just. His blessings are for all. He plays no favorites. The Rev. Cummings urged the acceptance of God as the Father. It can be a noble faith, it can be a strength, it will bring happiness, confidence, reassurance. It is a privilege open to every one who will heed the gospel of Christ.

SOPHS AND JUNIORS TO FIGHT FOR TITLE

Second Year Men Earn Right to Play Juniors By Trimming the Frosh 7 to 0.

By defeating the freshman team by a score of 7 to 0 last Saturday afternoon at the fairgrounds, the sophomores have advanced one step toward the championship of the high school. They will play the final match with the juniors next Saturday afternoon. The game was hotly contested, as the two teams were very evenly matched. The backfield of the first year men excelled that of the sophomores, but the latter team had a better line and played a bit harder football throughout the game, and many looked for a 0 to 0 tie. Finally the sophomores bucked up and managed to drive over a touchdown.

The coming week will be devoted to hard practice on the part of the two teams who are to contend for first honors in the class tournament. Morse, the junior captain, and Sprackling, leader of the second year men, are conferring with the coaches and planning a number of new plays with which they hope to down their rivals. Preliminary preparations are being made to open the basketball season immediately after the Thanksgiving recess. Prospects for a winning team are bright this year, and the coaches are now lining up men so as to get a flying start with a large squad.

ILLINOIS' DEFEAT BIGGEST SURPRISE IN "BIG 9" GAMES

Chicago	3	0	.800

Wisconsin	1	1	.333
Iowa	0	3	.000
Indiana	0	3	.000
Purdue	0	4	.000

Football eleven of the Big Nine came through Saturday's games playing true to form, with the exception of a single upset—the totally unexpected defeat of Illinois at the hands of Chicago.

Northwestern disposed of Purdue, burying the Hoosiers under a 38 to 6 score, and kept its slate clean for the championship game with the undefeated Ohio State at Columbus next Saturday. Ohio State had already finished its conference schedule, with the exception of the clash with Northwestern, and had little trouble over-coming Case, 28 to 0.

Touted as being a foe not to be given serious consideration, Chicago, twice beaten in the conference race, sprung one of the biggest surprises of a surprising season by upsetting Illinois with a 20 to 7 victory. The downstate eleven, which two weeks ago caused a surprising upset by trouncing a Minnesota eleven, has been regarded by critics as a certain winner.

The comeback of Minnesota, which early in the season was regarded as the "class" of the Big Nine, was one of the surprises of Saturday's schedule. The Gophers, beating Wisconsin 35 to 0, gave the Badger eleven the worst drubbing in twenty years. The Minnesota eleven played almost perfect football, offensively and defensively. Indiana kept its stars out of the game with Florida so as to send its full strength into the annual game with Purdue next Saturday. The eleven from Dixie got the jump on Indiana and led, 3 to 0, at the end of the first half, but the Hoosiers came from behind and registered two touchdowns in the last two periods.

Del Gainer started life as a carpenter. He made several failures before he became a big league fixture, but kept on hammering away until he finally became a nailing good ball player.

BASEBALL IN WEST

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 20.—Clubs in the Western league lost from $1,000 to $10,000 each last season, according to Frank Isbell, manager of the Des Moines club.

"The league used to have from $4,000 to $5,000 in its treasury, but last season we had nothing. Every club in former years used to make money. Denver drew fewer than 50,000 last season. It used to draw as high as 150,000."

Edgerton's Fast Aggregation Lays Claim To State Honors

Edgerton's husky football team, as a result of its 6 to 0 victory over Marquette academy of Milwaukee, is laying claim to the Wisconsin state high school championship. But as has been the case for years past, other schools in the state which won every game this season are making similar claims.

Edgerton's record in the district it represents is the best of any team. High school football is woefully weak in the southern part of the state this year and perhaps can be said to be on the toboggan because of the little interest manifested by school authorities. A change must come shortly or the famous fall sport will be thrown to the discard.

As a scoring machine the Tobacco City team is the equal to that of any eleven in the state. Three hundred and thirty-two points have been amassed against a total of six for their opponents. This lone score is credited to North Division, Milwaukee, and came on a forward pass over the goal line.

Janesville high's pep-lacking aggregation received the worst licking at the hands of Edgerton, having permitted a score of ninety-nine to be piled up against them. Port Atkinson fared little better, having been struck by a cyclone which piled up 78 points. Stoughton in its first game succeeded in holding Edgerton to the lowest score of the year, six points. Old rivals since the first crop of the convulsions weaned sprouted near the Tobacco

City, these two teams fought and claved each other for four periods, but finally Edgerton returned victor. They met again, however, and this time Edgerton, primed to the minute, plowed through the wagon-making Swedes for thirty-four points.

Early prospects of a strong team were not amiss at Edgerton. Lots of beef and speed were in the school and in addition a classy coaching staff had been secured. With everything favorable, the team has been developed to the fine point, and to the position where it can challenge any high school team in Badgerdom.

Gerches Lamereaux and Dexter have worked diligently and hard and so they must go a big share of the credit of the showing this fall. They have driven in the finer points and fundamentals and most important of all have shown the squad the all important results of strict training.

DALTON AND CRONIN SHINE IN TITLE TILT

Dubuque, Conference Champs of Hawkeye State, Annex Western Catholic College Title at St. Paul.
Dubuque college football team, Hawkeye state champions, of which Maurice J. Dalton of this city is captain and fullback and Tommy Cronin, another Janesville boy, right half, added more laurels Friday by beating the crack St. Thomas college team, 18 to 6 at St. Paul, and added the title of the western Catholic colleges.

St. Thomas led at the close of the first half after Captain Ward, the man who figured greatly in the 26 to 27 defeat administered to Marquette, led in a march right through the ovens and attempted being successful. Dalton, Dubuque quarter, was responsible for this.

Taking the ball from the kickoff in the opening of the third period, the Hawkeye warriors, led by Captain Dalton, showed their real strength. Pretty forward passes, eight of them, evened the score and being successful, Dalton carried the ball into St. Thomas territory by clashing end runs. McDonald went over and tied the score, but Cronin failed to kick the goal.

Both the St. Paul Pioneer and the St. Paul Dispatch were loud in their praise for Dalton and Cronin. "The former," says the Pioneer, "was the individual star of the game. Cronin also shone on offense and defense." Cronin went over for the final touchdown in the fourth period and also kicked the goal.

The Dubuque team witnessed the Wisconsin-Minnesota game Saturday. In a letter to a friend here Dalton wrote: "Wisconsin used bad generalship all through the game. They couldn't hold Minnesota for downs once, yet Wisconsin kicked off after each touchdown and never received one kickoff. They couldn't plow the line, yet they continually tried it; but once did they attempt a trick play."

"When Boston made his touchdown on the kickoff at least three Wisconsin men tackled him, but didn't down him. He went straight through the middle of the field."

Edler was criticised because he failed to advance to meet the plunging Minnesota backs. He waited until they reached him before he would mix in the pile or attempt to stop their progress.

Many owners of baseball clubs take a new manager and keep him for a year or two. Then, just as it is probable that he has learned enough to correct his mistakes and begin to earn his salary, they let him go and start all over again with somebody else. Dunn of Cleveland is to be commended for retaining a man such as Lee Foul as a matter of fact, Foul got a good deal out of his material and is likely to do even better another season. Supposing that Speaker had been made manager and that he had proved unsuited to the post, it always would have been hard for him to go back to the ranks in Cleveland and the club would have been in danger of losing its greatest asset for the sake of an experiment.

It is reported that Jimmy Callahan will lead the Pirates. Barney Dreyfuss and his manager had some misunderstandings, but they all have been straightened out. Callahan developed some promising youngsters last season and should have a stronger team next year.

Again it is proposed to form a third major league. This is a fine idea, but just where are the players to come from? There barely are enough really top-notch players in the game to make up right now. Try it and see. Of course it is true that some so-called minor league teams could wallop some so-called major league teams, but that is beside the question.

Col. Ebbets appears to be of the opinion that a catcher working with a spitball pitcher should be armed with a cuspidor instead of a mitt.

During a baseball game in Sing Sing prison yard, a fan objected to a decision of the convict umpire by bawling: "Robber!" The umpire walked over to the fan and said: "Don't get personal; this is only a friendly game."

Cincinnati fans are enthusiastic over the prospects for a winning ball club next season, as only three members of last year's team are under contract at present.

Connie Mack has come out in defense of Garry Herrmann, national commission chairman. Mack says Herrmann combines an energy and enthusiasm lacking in any other man he knows. Mack favors the retention of Herrmann as chairman and also thinks that the commission should be left alone.

Another youngster who has made his mark in California semi-pro circles has been signed by Manager Del Howard of Oakland for a trial next year. He is Peter Diehl, a second baseman and he hails from Merced, Cal.

According to a report from Newark Dave Shean is being sought to manage the Indians next year in place of Fred Tenney. This is interesting as indicating that Shean and the Providence club are likely to come to terms again.

Pitcher Ernes Herbert, who was with Nashville in the southern league the past season, is out with the announcement that he has quit the game. He has bought a moving picture show in his home town of Merced, Mo., and thinks his fortune is made.

Announcement comes from Kansas City that the Kansas City club has purchased both George McQuillen and George Chalmers from the Philadelphia National league club. Walpers were asked and secured on the two pitchers shortly after the close of the season.

When the Cincinnati club asked for waivers on Pitcher Schultz it also put infielder Bob Fisher and Outfielder George Twombly on the market. Twombly probably will go to Baltimore. Several deals are pending for Fisher, according to the Cincinnati announcement.

Scottie Monteth is certainly a gambler. He offers Freddie Welsh an $18,000 guarantee to meet Dundee in a twenty round bout. It might be well to know that Ad Wolgast, then champion, only drew $20,000 with Joe Mandot, a home prize. With two out-of-town stars performing the gate might not top the guarantee.

After the poor playing of the discouraged Robins in the last game of the world's series, the expression was often heard that there were several teams in the American league that could have beaten the National league champions. It was figured that the White Sox, the Tigers and the Yankees with all of the regular players in the line-up could have performed the same feat against Robby's boys as easily as the Red Sox had done.

Suppose Fatimas were NOT Sensible

It isn't possible to fool men for long. Lincoln said that better than we could. Surely, if Fatimas were not as comfortable to the throat and tongue as we say they are—if they did not leave a man feeling keen and "fit" after a long-smoking day—do you suppose that more Fatimas would be sold every day than any other high-grade cigarette? Remember these facts as you try Fatimas and observe how comfortable, how sensible they really are.

Lenore Ulrich taking her ease.

Eight hours of sleep every night can hardly be expected to make the homely become beautiful, but this amount of sleep each day will go a long way to retain one's good looks.

Lenore Ulrich, the secret star, is a firm believer in the "eight-hour-day" law as far as sleep is concerned and makes it a stringent rule which she follows out with utter disregard to invitations for lobster parties on Broadway.

Thomas Edison might have the right idea in his belief that four hours' sleep is enough for any man, but then men are not so particular about their personal beauty as the fairer sex.

With her twin dolls tucked beneath each arm and an interesting book in her hand, Miss Ulrich reads to her heart's content—or rather until the little dream man comes around and waits his magic spell over the pretty favorite of the screen.

Is it a wonder that she is considered one of the most beautiful girls in screenland?

The QUARTERBREED

By ROBERT AMES BENNET

"Mebbe it don't, and then ag'in," Dupont began to scratch his head. "Yes, mebbe it don't, and then ag'in, mebbe it does. Just you take a look at it this way, Cap. Suppose that new trouty goes through, the tribe don't git nothing out of this mine, and we don't, neither. Just some lucky bum beats us to it, and the government says it's his. Is that fair and square?"

"You have acted outside the law," said Hardy. "You must take your chances with other locators." "How about the tribe?" queried Dupont. "Don't you care nothing about their interests? Just supposing you and me and Mr. Van took hold of this here proposition for the tribe and split even with them on the proceeds, I call that a square deal to them and us, too—

—and I know Marie would think the same. She likes you, Cap. Just show her you want to do what's best for all concerned, and I'm dead sure she—" "Stop!" commanded Hardy. "Leave your daughter out of this."

"You've got to tell me how I'm going to do it," replied Dupont in an injured tone. "If I don't git my share in the mine, Mr. Van can't afford to take her; and you won't have no show. But you git in right with Marie, and she'd work her hands to the bone for you. She ain't no common breed girl, neither. You know that. She'd be a real lady, if she had money—only you ain't going to give her no chance."

"She knows that I wish to marry her," said Hardy. "Think she believes that when you're going to rob me and her of a fortune?"

Hardy looked directly at the tempter, his eyes clear and resolute, though his face was white and drawn. "It is of no use, Dupont. I shall do what I consider my duty."

Dupont's face darkened. "So that's what I git for saving your life. You ain't got a particle of gratitude, and you don't care a hang about her."

"I must beg to differ with you," said Hardy. "But I cannot expect you to understand my position."

Dupont drew out his pipe and returned to his seat on the mine-dump, to brood on his wrongs in morose silence. Hardy thoughtfully walked back to the cabin, drew out a writing pad from one of his saddlebags and began to draft a semi-official letter to the most influential of his few acquaintances in Washington.

He soon became so intent that he did not notice the half-donkey figures in dark blue uniform that came swinging down the precipitous mountain-side above the terrace. When at last he finished the letter and looked up, he saw all the members of the police escort drawn up in line before him, their swarthy faces alight with respectful friendliness. Their sergeant uttered a guttural word of salutation, and began making signs.

Hardy smiled, shook his head, and looked around for an interpreter. Dupont still sat sulking on the mine dump, but Marie and Vandervyn were coming back up the mountain-side. They appeared only a few yards away, as Hardy glanced about. His lips drew tense when he perceived the girl's happy blushes and the look with which Vandervyn was regarding her half-averted face.

At sight of Hardy she straightened with proud disdain, and would have immediately gone around into the cabin had he not spoken.

"Pardon me, Miss Dupont. These men wish to report to me. May I ask you to interpret for them?"

The girl turned coldly to the sergeant, who at once poured out an impassioned declaration, emphasized with swift-forward signs. He was still talking, when Dupont suddenly shambled over from the mine-dump. His disconcerted face darkened still more when he came within hearing of the speakers.

promptly oration. Without looking at Hardy, Marie gave the substance of the speech with contemptuous curtness.

"He says they think you were very brave to follow the shooter into the broken mountain. They are very sorry that they could not again find the trail of the bad Indian after losing it on the bare rocks from which he must have shot Charlie."

"Tell them that is all right. This fellow thought I was the enemy of his tribe. He will soon learn better. Neither he nor any other will again attack me."

"Yes, you have talked Thunderbolt into believing you the tribe's dearest friend," ironically replied Marie. "These silly fellows trailed you to the chief's camp, and have swallowed whole the account of the wonderful good things you are going to do for the tribe. All this gush and fuss was over that and your big heart."

Regardless of the mockery in the girl's eyes, Hardy turned to smile and nod at the policemen in acknowledgment of their kindly feeling.

Dupont muttered a curse, and ventured an ill-humored remark loud enough to reach Hardy's ears: "The whole bunch'd sling a different tune if I told them how he turned down the chance to give the tribe half what's in our mine."

"Chuck it, Jake!" interposed Vandervyn, with a good-humored smile that surprised Hardy no less than the trader. "It's up to us to take our medicine. We know it will not be to the best interests of the tribe. The responsibility, however, is his."

"You ain't going to throw down, are you?" exclaimed Dupont.

"What else can we do?" mildly asked Vandervyn. "The game is up."

"What if the government don't make it no rush, but has the entry-men draw lots?" objected Dupont. "I been fool enough to show Cap through the diggings and tell him what we got blocked out. If he ain't square enough to keep his head shut, we won't stand no chance at all of buying out the entryman what draws first choice in the lottery."

"You see, captain," said Vandervyn. "As we discovered and developed the lode, do you not think the honorable thing would be to make no mention of the mine in your report?"

"The tribe should receive a large payment for their mineral lands," replied Hardy.

"Quite true," agreed Vandervyn, his voice ringing clear and strong with sincerity. "There was talk of paying them fifteen millions. I think it should be fifteen or twenty. We have found indications of other lodes. I am sure you will see that it would be perfectly honorable to report that fact, but leave out all mention of our mine. That would protect us, and do no harm to the tribe. If you see it that way, I will pull all the wires I can to convince the government that this part of the reservation is rich in minerals. My uncle is chairman of the treaty commission. If his report favors a payment of fifteen or twenty millions to the tribe, congress will appropriate that amount."

"If there are indications of other lodes as rich as this one, fifteen millions is none too large a price," said Hardy. "You agree to help obtain fair compensation to the tribe?"

"Provided you do the fair and honorable thing by us," replied Vandervyn.

Hardy considered, and nodded. "Very well. As between you and the other entrymen, it seems to me right to withhold your secret. You found and developed this mine, and it is not the fault of yourself and Dupont that Nogen had the work done at the expense of the tribe."

"Pere and Mr. Van will pay them for all the work," proudly stated Marie.

Dupont gaped in blank amazement at this unwelcome prediction. Not so Vandervyn.

"Of course we shall pay them, captain," he confirmed. "I intend to list the claimants and the amount due them at the council tomorrow. Neither Jake nor I can afford to settle with them out of hand. But Jake will allow them part payment in trade goods, and we shall make other payments as fast as we get returns from our next ore shipments."

"Very good," agreed Hardy. "You are to understand, however, that the tribe must voluntarily bring the ore to the reservation boundary and there sell it to you. Have you considered the risk of the public surmising the existence of the mine from the ore shipments?"

"No chance of that," explained Dupont. "Nogen let it out that he got the ore from a prospect in the mountains clean back across the other boundary of the reservation, and he showed around a sinister report of a shipment of ore that we'd doctored with barren rock so's it just paid out expenses."

"You insulted my father!"

Hardy did not smile. He returned gravely to Marie. "In view of the general agreement, Miss Dupont, may I hope that you—"

"You may not, Captain Hardy," she ungraciously interrupted. "You insulted my father. He and I shall at once leave for home."

Dupont looked to Vandervyn, and received a sign to acquiesce.

"Don't want to leave you in the lurch, Cap," he said. "But if Marie's set on going, guess I'll have to."

"Tell four of the police they are detailed to escort yourself and Miss Dupont back to the agency," ordered Hardy. He raised his hat to Marie. "Permit me to wish you a pleasant journey."

The girl turned away without replying. Hardy stood for a moment cool and still under Vandervyn's exultant smile; then faced about and steadily walked off along the mountain terrace.

He did not return to the cabin until the greater number of the saddle and pack ponies had been brought up from the valley and the returning party had mounted and ridden away on the back trail. Vandervyn started off with them, and Hardy's keen, hazel eyes dimmed as, leaning against a gnarled pine on the slope above, he watched the lovers ride away, side by side.

Angered at himself for his momentary weakness, he sprang down the ledges to the terrace, and hastened back to talk with Redbear. He was met at the cabin door by Olna, who placed a finger on her lips and whispered that her brother had at last fallen asleep.

Hardy withdrew to the shady side of the cabin, where he sat down on his saddle and began drafting a list of instructions for the tribal delegates to Washington. He was still writing them when, shortly before midnight, Vandervyn came jogging back to the mine. He had had a delightful ride with Marie, and he complacently intimated the fact to Hardy.

In the midst of this subtle tormenting of his rival, Olna came out to serve the supper that she had cooked in the cabin. Vandervyn abruptly changed the subject, and began to talk about the council next day. Hardy gave no sign that he observed this sudden break or the furtive, adoring glances that the girl bestowed on Vandervyn as she glided softly to and fro.

The night came on, clear and still. As they puffed at their after-supper pipes, Vandervyn suggested that, out of consideration for the young woman, they roll up in their blankets outside the cabin. To this Hardy made no objection. They picked out a soft spot matted with fallen pine needles, under a low-growing tree, and soon both were seemingly fast asleep.

After several minutes Vandervyn spoke to his companion in a low tone. Hardy did not answer. Vandervyn drew out his pipe and struck a match. He held the flame above Hardy's face. The eyes were closed, and the severe, half-melancholy expression of the harsh features was relaxed as if in heavy slumber.

Vandervyn extinguished the match, and slipped out of his blankets. Noiselessly he crept down to the cabin and around to the door. It was barred on the inside. He tapped on it.

There was a sliding sound within the cabin, and the heavy door began to swing inward. Vandervyn put his foot on the threshold to enter. At the same moment a sinewy hand gripped his shoulder and jerked him away. He cursed, and clapped his hand to his holster as he whirled about. It was empty. He bent forward to spring at the dark form in the half-open doorway.

"Stand back!" came the stern command. "I have your revolver. Olna, close the door."

The door swung shut. In the tense silence the rattle of the bar as it shot back into its socket was distinct. Vandervyn's teeth ground together.

"You—straight-laced prig!" he choked out. "Get away from here! I'm going in."

"Suppose I do not choose to give it?" "Then I will protect her by ordering you to leave the reservation as fast as you can travel."

"I see," taunted Vandervyn. "You want to get rid of me, so you can have clear sailing with Marie. You're a great one to spout about honor! You'll go and blab to her about this."

"You know very well I cannot do that. Yet if you refuse to give me your word, I shall feel justified in telling Dupont my reason for ordering you off the reservation."

Vandervyn burst into a cynical laugh. "Do you think Jake's the sort to care."

"When the happiness of his daughter is at stake—"

"Precisely. He thinks I'm her one best chance."

Mrs. Hefflin Is Saved From Operating Table

Brother and Sister Both Relieved by Remedy Available to Any One.

In her gratitude for a remedy that saved her from the possible necessity for an operation, Mrs. Carrie Hefflin, of Crests, Kans., writes: "Had it not been for Fruitalia and Traxo I might have been on the operating table by now. It relieved me of at least one hundred and fifty gall stones. It surely does work wonders. My brother also had suffered for years and has been greatly benefited by Fruitalia and Traxo."

Fruitalia and Traxo are compounded from the original Edsall formulas at the Pinus Laboratories in Monticello, Ill., and can be purchased in Janesville at J. P. Baker, 123 W. Milwaukee street; a doctor's prescription is not necessary. Fruitalia is a pure fruit oil that acts as an intestinal lubricant and disintegrates the hardened particles that cause so much suffering, discharging the accumulated waste to the sufferer's intense relief. One dose is usually sufficient to indicate its efficacy. Traxo is a tonic-alternative that is most effective to rebuild and restore the weakened, rundown system.

One little girl, however, followed instructions to the letter by adding: "And then he went to the platform, sat down, played with his watch chain, twirled his mustache and winked at the lady teacher."

In one of his early sermons the new army chaplain lamented the fact that many men spent their evenings at the club. "The club," he said, "is a place for bachelors. It is not right for a married man to pass the evening away from home while his poor wife sadly rocks the cradle with one foot and wipes away the tears with the other."

At the age of sixteen Alice Jones wrought poetic changes in her name. She signed herself E. Alyse Jones. Thus designated she entered a new school. The head mistress asked her name.

"Alyse," Jones," she replied. "Alyse-a-a." "Thank you," said the teacher. "And how are you spelling Jones now?"

COULDN'T FOOL HIM TWICE

Experience Proved That There Was Nothing "Just As Good" As Father John's Medicine for Colds and Throat Troubles and As a Body Builder

The victim of an unscrupulous druggist in a Pennsylvania town says that when he asked for Father John's Medicine the druggist persuaded him to take something else which was "just as good," according to the clerk.

"I might just as well have taken so much water," this writer continues. "I afterward went back and got Father John's Medicine and in a short time I felt the good effects. It increased my weight, gave me strength and helped my bronchial trouble."

In some localities this practice of substitution by druggists is an evil practice of vast proportions. The unscrupulous druggist who forces upon you a different preparation when you call for Father John's Medicine is doing you an injury.

Remember that Father John's Medicine is a doctor's prescription, pure and wholesome, free from opium, morphine, chloroform or any other dangerous drugs or alcohol and with a history of more than 50 years' success in the treatment of colds, throat troubles and as a tonic and body builder.

Begin taking it today; it will make you strong. If you have any difficulty in securing Father John's Medicine from your druggist, write to Father John's Medicine, Lowell, Mass., enclosing $1.00 for a large bottle by express prepaid.
